

Plan

First of all, this website is cute but the wallpaper on the background really bothered me. So I decided to make this website to tone it down a little to a single color but make the content boxes in a lighter color than the background color in order to be more definite and comfortable to look at the website. I liked the idea of their sky wallpaper. I get it. They are cloud 9 walkers. I went with a casual light/pastel blue color to resemble the color of the sky.

I wanted this website to be friendly and simple. So I did not stress too much about the design. The colors and the arrangement around the screen would look and accomplish the simple look. This is the best approach because I believe that the more simple the website is the more comfortable and easy to look at the site.

Layout

This website had a list of horses that got sold and potential horses up for a sale. So I decided to make the list into a block format so that it is easy for the users to scroll down (during both in mobile and desktop view) in a simple and wide view of the horse and the information along with it. I decided to cut down the list because it was way too long. No website should have that many lists of records in my opinion. The secondary and homepage have the same format both in mobile and desktop views.
